Corporate Structuring: An Essential Component of Incorporation

Arun Shourie
Ogilvie LLP, Edmonton

This talk will provide information and understanding to those who want to indulge into entrepreneurial practices. It will detail the typical problems which new businessmen face from a corporate standpoint in structuring the enterprise. It will touch upon the different types of associations and how the structuring becomes important over a period of time in business. This will be supported by different examples from many years of his practice.

Arun has been practising law internationally for almost 10 years now. He provides legal services and consultation to businesses in various industries. His practice encompasses a broad range of activities, including: Domestic & International Business Strategic Planning; Corporate Organizing, Structuring, Governance; Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers; Corporate Commercial Arrangements & Transactions; Policy Research & Advisory Services; Domestic & International Economic Development Advisory Service; Foreign Business Investments in India & Strategic Settlements including repatriation of funds. Arun's practice also includes a general content of Real Estate, Contract Matters, Trademarks, and Wills and Estates. Academically, Arun is qualified to practice in two international jurisdictions, and he has a Master's Degree in Law from McGill University, Montreal, Canada.
